

Abstract

The present invention relates to a method for screening patients to determine their ability to respond to a tumor treatment and also to a diagnostic test for carrying out the said method.

111867